

FRIENDS'S TULIPS

THE BIG PICTURE IS OUR TULIPS, THE OTHER ONE IS THE TULIPS IN THE PARK ACROSS THE STREET.

Our Tulips Aren't Doing So Great, But Why?

HI FROM NEW YORK!

So, as you can see, our tulips aren't exactly what you would call picture-perfect. Our teacher, Lissa, wanted to know our hypotheses as to why they weren't doing well. Here's what we came up with:

a) The weather. From dry spells to thunderstorms, to high winds, NYC has had some pretty rough weather. However, the tulips across the street look fine, so that might not be the case.

b) The tulips were replanted, so they were without nutrients for three whole days. The tulips in the park definitely weren't

c) They just haven't had enough attention. The park tulips were watered and taken care of everyday, while our tulips were only visited once a week, and that was only to take measurements.

So, that's pretty much it. We hope your tulips are doing better than ours!
